Fighting in World War I ended mostly by the end of September, not long after the solar eclipse on June 8, 1918. The war officially ended that November.

"This is the first one since 1918 that has crossed the country in this way," she said. "If you think about what was going on at this time in 1918, the Spanish flu was raging, World War I was at its height."

James Juanitas I don't know if people know or not but Robert E. Lee was personally against Slavery. He always defended U.S. Grant after the Civil War and was devastated after Lincoln was killed ( he called it the worst thing that could happen to the South) because he thought both Lincoln & Grant were generous in the surrender of the Confederate Army.

'By the 3rd millennium BC, the successor Liangzhu culture showed evidence of influence from the Longshan peoples of the North China Plain.[59] A study of Liangzhu remains found a high prevalence of haplogroup O1, linking it to Austronesian and Daic populations;[60] the same study found the rare haplogroup O3d at a Daxi site on the central Yangtze, indicates possible connection with the Hmong, although "only small traces" of haplogroup O3d remains in Hmong today.[61] What is now thought of as Chinese culture developed along the more fertile Yellow River basin; the "Yue" people of the lower Yangtze possessed very different traditions – blackening their teeth, cutting their hair short, tattooing their bodies, and living in small settlements among bamboo groves[62] – and were considered barbarous by the northerners.'

Millions of Americans do 'hard work' everyday. They don't do farm work, because it doesn't pay. We have become used to always having someone to exploit to do farm labor. If farm laborers were properly compensated like others who do hard work, the wages would be well over $25/hr. Food costs will go up, but I believe that the amount is overstated.

Today's partial lunar eclipse will be visible only in Africa, Asia and Australia.

This is in contrast to the "Great American" full solar eclipse on Aug. 21. The most U.S.-centric eclipse since 1918 solar eclipse, which occurred a month before the outbreak of the Spanish Flu pandemic and a few months before the end of World War I.

Along the path of totality, the day will literally turn into dark night.

'It all started about 45,000 years ago. At that point, people began burned down vegetation to make room for plant resources and homes. Over the next 35,000 years, the simple practice of burning back forest evolved. People mixed specialized soils for growing plants; they drained swamps for agriculture; they domesticated animals like chickens; and they farmed yam, taro, sweet potato, chili pepper, black pepper, mango, and bananas. '

Evidence that humans had farms 30,000 years earlier than previously thought

Dramatic new hypothesis could change the way we understand human history.

Anita Appelhans Big problem here in NW Ohio. We grow lots of tomatoes, pickles, cabbage that depend on hand labor. And I've noticed far fewer Hispanic migrant workers around town this summer. And, the simple fact is - lots of the migrant workers who come here are illegals because there aren't even enough legals to fill the need. And you sure aren't going to get white folks to do this work.

Finland is testing universal basic income - and found it has had an unexpected side effect

Finland has been giving 2,000 of its citizens an unconditional income for the last five months and some are already seeing the benefits, reporting decreased stress, greater incentives to find work and more time to pursue business ideas.

Guaranteed income increases entrepreneurship!

He said he is also in the process of starting a business, is much less stressed and no longer has to go through the “silly show” of filling out forms or attending regular interviews with employment agency officials.

Star Trek's initial creator Gene Roddenberry was a humanist, but I don't think he ever claimed to be socialist.

The Federation did not have money/currency, but some other civilizations did, for example, the Ferengi used latinum as currency.

Everyone in the Federation was entitled to free food, etc.
